The contemporary city provides many of the existential layers necessary to accommodate an extremely fast paced society. Today, diverse environments intersect in the same spaces. Virtual and real existing places gather or loose in importance quickly. Identity is decisive under these fast-changing circumstances! The human body becomes an expressive tool - the individual configuration an essential element of one's own perception and the perception of others.

Skin and shelter!

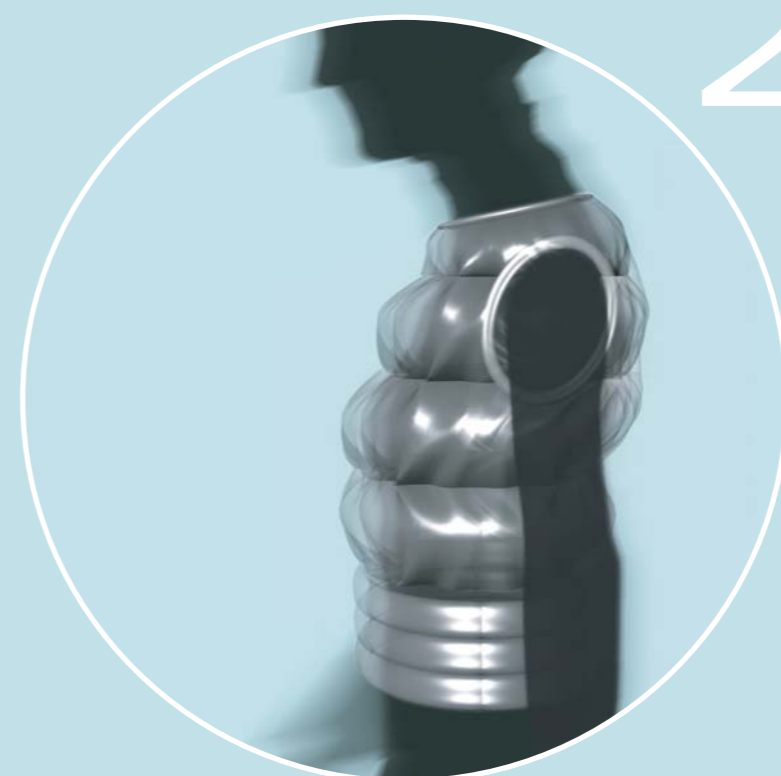

The structure consists of a medium-weight elastic synthetic membrane. It can be easily transformed from a cape or waistcoat into an architectural form by inflating a lighter-than-air-medium (like helium). The material inscribed memory allows for a quick change between mobile and immobile at any time. Thus, the object represents the urban-temporary life style as contemporary art form.

The iconography of the object's design is conceived from the culturally permanent imaginations of nomadic life forms.
